

Law student intern volunteer sought for Education Law Unit at Bronx Legal Services, a non-profit organization serving the low income community in the Bronx with free legal services. Our dynamic unit works in the areas of school discipline and education for students with disabilities. We represent students and parents in suspension matters, seeking to preserve educational engagement and supports and minimize educational disruption. We also represent parents and students at IEP meetings and impartial hearings, where we seek improved educational plans for students with disabilities and seek compensatory education where services have not been provided. We are actively working to disrupt the school to prison pipeline through a variety of initiatives that a student intern can become involved in. Volunteers are expected to work 2 days per week (can be divided up) at our office and will have an opportunity to be mentored by experienced attorneys. If your school offers externship credit we are happy to work with your professor to craft an appropriate program. If interested please send your cover letter, resume and a writing sample to:
