Unified Court System's 2025 Annual Report Now Available Online

NEW YORK—Reflecting the more than two years of progress under the current UCS judicial leadership, the 2025 Annual Report is now available online at <https://www.nycourts.gov/LegacyPDFS/25-UCS-Annual-Report.pdf>

The report highlights continued advancements to support the fair, effective, and timely delivery of justice, documenting the expanded adoption of innovative court models, case management tools, and courtroom technologies, among other UCS initiatives and programs.

The publication showcases, through narrative and visuals, the work of New York's Third Branch and the many people who bring it to life. From the judges and non-judicial professionals serving the State's 62 counties to the New Yorkers who come through the courts as litigants, jurors, attorneys, witnesses, and visitors, the report captures the scale and impact of the Court System's daily work.

"We remain committed to encouraging fresh approaches and innovative thinking across the Court System. The accomplishments detailed in the 2025 Annual Report reflect the success of this ongoing, collaborative effort," said Chief Administrative Judge Zayas.

"Building on the significant progress achieved over the past two-plus years, this report underscores the dedication of our judges, non-judicial professionals, and justice partners statewide," said First Deputy Chief Administrative Judge Norman St. George. "With continued collaboration, communication, and cooperation, we will keep the Court System moving forward."
